It thus appears that 18 out of the of counties of the class of 1857, and 10 counties of the class of 1859, transferred to that of 1861, making in all 58 counties, containing a voting population in 1857 of 82,082, were entitled to the senatorial elections of 1861. This is a little over half the counties, but just about half the voting population of the State.

It will be observed that there are 10 counties. It will be observed that there are IO counties, 19 districts entitled to vote in 1861, 11 are made up in full with counties of the class of 55-51, and a imjuity of the voters in each of said districts is of the class of voters of 1857.

The counties which maile up the 19 districts of the class of 1857 are, by the apportionment of 1860, distributed to, and combined in 25 districts, and this table gives the elections of 1861 to the 19 districts of the said 25 which contain the greatest numbers of voters of said class of 1857.

By this plan up whole district gats two Senators. By this plan un whole district gets two Senators, and only ten counties have double representation for two years. To assign the elections of 1861 to those districts having the mere numbers of the class which voted in 1857, without regail to the alternel combinations of counties made by the apportionment of 1860, would be to give the elections to at least unne districts and entitled to them to disfranchise whole districts, and at least one fourth of the counties of the State for two years, and for the same length of time confer two Senators on other districts and double representation on another lourth of the counties. Such a course could not be right.

It is bolieved that the table is hased and calcu- Laurel.

and the work would be leveled down as fast as it could be put in shope, were it not that I was fortunate in linding, about three quarters of a mile up the Island, some marshes, tront which I obtained a good sod to rivet the work with and held the sand in its place. I have been very much sunoyed with the uaval gun carriages sent from Norfolk, which ere no doubt well adapted to war steamers when they have port holes to fire through, but which are not at ell adapted to fortifications, as they carry the guns so low as lorent-fit impossible to raise a parapet of sufficient height to protect the men who work the guns. If I were to construct embrasures for them, the field of fire would be entirely too limited, as it is necessary not only to command the bar, but the channel of approach. I would therefore respectfully urge that Marsbal Parks be directed to send no more of them.

Perhaps but few persons in Kentucky fully apeciate the blessings which their State enjoys rme hare and there in Kantucky outrages occur, in the great mass of the people or joy computative racquillity. The Kentuckian who would travel brough Missouri, as I have done, could form one idea of the horrors this Stete has avoided y purshing the joudent course of neutrality. There is not a neighborhood in Missouri but eged arents are found mourning with intensest grief heir cons mengled and sloin in this wretched ackson war. Some time and I visited the hedockson war. Some time ago I visited the hed med, unhallowed ambition of a man whose oioral secessionists would ride to places of rendezvous where dackson's forces were assembling, and there, armed with guiss and knives, try to make the impressive that they themselves were onlisting to tight against the l'nited States army.

Their example was fellowed by the young, but as soon as intriching orders were given these old 'decoy ducks' stip off to their homes. Many roung men onlisted out of sympathy, when they boundly supposed old and influential men were yoing, who only assembled to entice others.

One of the weaknesses of human nature is going, who only assembled to entice others.

One of the weaknesses of human nature is man's susceptibility of being whirled shout by excitement. When simple old men were loudly denouncing the movement of Uoited States troops through Missouti as an invacion, hundreds, doubtless honestly, thought it was an invasion. They seemed to have forgotten the fact that our national army always existed in the State; indeed, many seemed perfectly domented through excitement. I have long noticed the tendencies of excitement; when they die sway the "soler sections of the state of the st ond thought' begins to pressil, and I hope, for the good of Missouri, the sober second thought will so sway the minds of men that they may peaceably return to their loyelty, to their old stripes and stars, and obedience to their venera-ble National Constitution. In Governor Gamule Missouri has an exemptive of which any State Missouri has an executive of which any State might be truly proud. Patriotism alone has in-duced Gov. to to accept the chilce. He sees his State on the verge of ruin; bloodshed, raping, wrets bedoes or sorrow threatens on avery side As a Christian and a gentleman, he comes forth to arrest the dread torrent that may overwholm to arrest the dread torrent that may overwholm our beloved Stete, and it is the duty of every lover of order to second his efforts.

Young men of Missouril outer not yourselves to be misled by designing men. There certainly can be no happiness in fighting against the lagthet protected you and your fathers before you. Is there not something upploasant in the thought of fighting against the United States? Neither you nor any one else can tell of one single instance wherein the United States government harmed you; it has always been your friend and protector. Why then ough you to rebel against it? Remember the illustrious dead whose names are assectated with your Government. ATFAIRS IN SOUTHERN MISSOURI—It is reported that the seconsion soldiers have nearly all departed from Springlield, some of them, under M Cullough, to Arkansas, and others, nader Price, to B liver and Warsaw, with designs upon the Stete capital. There has evidently been a "filtre np" be ween McCullough, Price, & Co, and it is said that the first named has taken up a wild disgust for the five thousand Missourians in the disunion army. Hastill sticks to it that they helpsyed in a cowardly manner at the battle of Wilson's Dreek ar a zivos them a had name in all his bullstlas to the Confederate authorities. Price, on the other hand, contends that the Missourians fought bravely and perfumed prodigies of valor, and we must say that the evidences which have reached us of their action on the fold rather sustain this claim.
